II. BACKGROUND

The subject properties are currently zoned Planned Unit Development (PUD) and are part of a larger unsuccessful PUD known as Diamond Reef, a 16-unit subdivision established in 2006. The properties were never developed as part of Diamond Reef. The properties are currently developed with residential homes with 1921 South Palmetto having a building footprint of $\pm 2,400$ square feet, built in 1960 and 1923 South Palmetto having a building footprint of $\pm 1,360$ square feet with an unknown construction date.

The properties recently changed ownership and the current property owner does not wish to participate in the Planned Unit development and requests that the R1-A zoning classification be reinstated on the two parcels. The property owner intends to redevelop 1921 South Palmetto as a single-family home, consistent with the existing use as a single-family home and neighboring properties. There are no plans for 1923 South Palmetto Avenue at this time. Rezoning the subject properties to R1-A would be consistent with their underlying Residential classifications as shown on the Future Land Use Map (FLUM) of the Comprehensive Plan. The proposed R1-A zoning would allow the property to be redeveloped in the future with single-family homes in accordance with the Land Development Code dimensional standards facilitating the continued utilization and productivity of the property, which is in the best interest of both the property-owner and the City.

In 2012, 1899 South Palmetto in proximity to the subject properties was rezoned in a similar manner from PUD to R1-A (Ordinance 12-02). Aside from this instance, the zoning classifications and Future Land Use designations north and south of the subject properties are generally homogeneous (R1-A). The rezoning in 2012 provides precedent for the applicant's request and provides appropriate dimensional standards to redevelop the properties as single family homes in the future consistent with dimensional standards in the area. Any future redevelopment of the subject properties will require site plan review.

III. ANALYSIS

The South Daytona Future Land Use Map (FLUM) identifies the subject parcels as Residential Density 1. The Residential Density 1 future land use designation is four units per acre and each parcel will not exceed the maximum density. The requested zoning change to R1-A is consistent with the City's future land use designation for the subject properties. The properties are existing lots of record and were previously zoned R1-A prior to the previous rezoning to PUD and are consistent with the other lots along the Halifax River in South Daytona.

The properties are already developed with single family homes. The requested zoning change will not represent a nuisance as there is no proposed change of use other than the single-family homes that exist there today. Since the R1-A zoning classification is allowed under the Residential Density 1 land use designation, the rezoning back to the R1-A is consistent with the City's adopted future land use map and adopted elements of the Comprehensive Plan. The requested rezoning will have no impact on the environmental and natural resources of the area. The rezoning will have no negative impact to the economy and represents an opportunity for reinvestment through redevelopment of the properties consistent with the goals of the Community Redevelopment Area policies. The purpose of the request is to rezone the properties to assign the R1-A zoning classification consistent with neighboring zoning along the South Palmetto Avenue corridor abutting the Halifax River.

IV. RECOMMENDATION

The Planning and Appeals Board reviewed this item at their meeting on February 8, 2023 and recommended the City Council approve the rezoning request. Staff recommends the City Council approve the second reading of Ordinance No. 2023-02, rezoning 1921 and 1923 South Palmetto Avenue from PUD (Planned Unit Development) to R1-A (Single Family Residential).
